EPITAPH ON MARY, COUNTESS OF DALKEITH.

[Died April 9, 1728, aged 125.]

Stay, traveler, until my life you read.
The living may get knowledge by the dead.
Five times five years I had a virgin life;
Ten times five years I was a virtuous wife;
Ten times five years I had a widow chase;
Now, weary of my life, I end my race.
I from my cradle to my grave have seen
Eight mighty kings in Scotland and a queen.
Four times five years a commonwealth I saw,
And twice the subject rose against the law.
Twice did I see the proud prelate pulled down,
And twice the cloak was humbled to the ground.
I saw my cinfry sold for English ore,
And haughty Stuart's rate subsists no more.
Such revolutions in my time have been.
—Church Times.

BLUEST OF BIRDS.

In a town of the ancient kingdom of Castile there lived in former ages a youth called Bartolo, who tried to eke out a living by making cages for birds and taking them round to sell at the neighboring villages. But his trade was a poor one, and he judged himself in luck if he sold one cage in a day, and, as may be supposed, he knew what sorrow and privation were.

One day as he was proceeding to a village he heard sounds of revelry, the buzz of many people and the strains of a band of music. This merrymaking was a procession of children dressed in white, carrying in their midst a beautiful child crowned with roses in a chariot covered with white satin and ornamented with acacia and myrtle. This procession was in horor of Maya, the personification of spring, and took place to announce the entry of spring. In front of the little chariot some children danced and held in their hands tin platters for contributions, and, as may be imagined, all, or nearly all, the spectators dropped their coins into them.

Bartolo moved away in a desponding mood, saying to himself as he walked on: "Is this the justice of the world? There they are flinging their money into these platters just because these children come in procession to announce to them that it is the month of May, as though they could not know it by looking in an almanac. They barter and grind me down to the lowest price for my cages even when I chance to sell one."

Full of these bitter thoughts, he walked on sadly, for the voices of two importunate enemies were making themselves heard within him. These were hunger and thirst. The one clamored for food and the other for drink. Bartolo had nothing in his wallet but his clasp knife and had had naught for his breakfast but hopes, and these made him sharp and active.

He had reached a plantation when he perceived a well dressed individual coming toward him. Pressed by hunger, Bartolo, taking his cap off respectfully, approached and said:

"Excuse me, sir, but could you kindly give me a trifle? I promise I will return it as soon as I earn some money."

"Don't you think that it is a shameful thing for a man like you—young and with a good, healthy appearance—to be demanding charity of people? Does it not strike you that you have a duty to earn your living by working at your trade?"

"Yes, sir, certainly, but my trade does not fulfill its own duty. Most people like to see the birds flying about free rather than in cages, and therefore day by day I find myself poorer than before."

At first the stranger doubted what he heard, but the birdcage maker gave him so detailed an account of his work and the small profits he derived that he became interested and sympathized with his ill fortune. Bartolo was a man who always knew how to excite great interest in himself.

"Come, come," the stranger said, smiling. "I will do something for you. As I cannot find customers for your cages, I will afford you a powerful means by which you shall never more be in want."

He then blew a whistle, and Bartolo saw flying before him a bird blue as the sky, which came and perched on one of his cages.

"See here," added the stranger, "what will compensate for all your past misery. From this day forward you have only to formulate a wish and say slowly and distinctly, 'Bluest of bluebirds, do your duty,' and your wish will be granted to you."

"By my faith!" cried the birdcage maker, "but I will try it at once. For the last 20 years I have wished to kill hunger. 'Bluest of bluebirds, do your duty!'"

Scarcely were the words out of his mouth than he saw suddenly spread before him on the grass a breakfast fit for a prince laid on a service of exquisite silver and glass and the whitest of cloths. Bartolo, astonished, flung himself on his knees before his benefactor to thank him, but he raised him up, saying:

"I am the good genius of the honest workingmen of Castile. Sit down and eat without fear. Take advantage of your lucky star," and then suddenly disappeared.

Bartolo reverently bent down and kissed the spot upon which he had stood, unable to find adequate expression of his gratitude.

He then sat down and ate his breakfast. After his meal Bartolo judged that a man who had feasted in such an elegant manner ought to have other better clothing than his well worn working suit, and lifting his staff he cried to the bird, 'Bluest of bluebirds, do your duty!" In an instant his old suit became transformed into one of richest velvet, embroidered in gold and silver, and his rough staff into a splendid horse fully caparisoned and having round its neck a collar of silver bells.

More astonished than ever, Bartolo suspended to the saddle the cage with the bluebird, leaped on the horse and went his way as proud of his dress as a donkey of its ears.

Setting spurs to his horse, he soon reached the gates of a splendid castle. Some feast was taking place within. The guests were all seated under a shady bower deploring that they had been disappointed of the minstrels who were to have played.

Bartolo, on learning this, advanced to the bower, and after elegantly saluting the lord and lady of the castle in a most refined voice said:

"If it be right for a simple knight to offer his services to such a distinguished company of rank and beauty, I think I could promise to provide what you are requiring."

"Oh, do, at once, please!" cried all the ladies, who were longing to dance.

"Bluest of bluebirds, do your duty!" said Bartolo.

Suddenly in the distance was heard the noise of many feet, and a troop of musicians with their instruments appeared, to the great delight of the company.

The lord of the castle thanked the stranger and desired him to open the ball with his eldest daughter, a maiden fair and lovely, like a snow bird.

When the ball was at its height, the birdcage maker ordered an elegant banquet to be served, during which the bluest of bluebirds was commanded to sing some songs, which were very much admired. Games of chance followed, and Bartolo, taking advantage of his good fortune, distributed among the ladies pearls, bracelets and rings of precious stones. All those present were surprised beyond measure because the lord of the castle was known to be extremely niggardly and mean.

The lord of the castle, who knew how all this had been done through the agency of the bird and being himself of an inordinately avaricious nature, thought he might do a fine stroke of business were he to purchase the bird. Hence, calling his unknown guest away to his study, he proposed to him to purchase the bird for what price he should quote.

"You would never give me my price," replied Bartolo.

"For it I would give my castle, with its nine forests," said the lord of the castle.

"It is not enough."

"Very well, I will add my olive plantations and vineyards."

"That is still insufficient," cried Bartolo.

"I will add the orchards, gardens and houses."

"I want something else."

"What, still more? Why, man, you must want paradise itself."

"Not so. I want what you can give me this very moment. I want your daughter with whom I danced just now. Let her be my bride."

"What, my daughter?" cried the old miser in an ecstasy of joy. "By my faith, we shall soon conclude the bargain. Why did you not say so before?"

He went to seek the girl and told her of the engagement he had entered into. But his daughter, in utter amazement, cried out:

"But what if he is a wicked elf and all he does be witchcraft?"

"You have an amulet of coral hanging from your neck. It is an antidote against all witchery."

"And what if he be satan himself?"

"I will give you a piece of blessed candle, and he will have no power over you," replied the unrelenting father.

Taking her hand, he led her to the stranger, who was already on his horse, and assisted her to mount behind her future husband. Taking the cage with the bluest of bluebirds, he watched the retreating forms of the pair as the horse carried them away swifter than the wind, and when out of sight he proceeded to join his guests. The company was all gathered in knots discussing the extraordinary powers of the bird and all the events which had taken place.

"Peace, peace!" cried the lord of the castle as he entered. "I will perform more marvelous things than ever he did. I have given him my daughter to wed in exchange for the bird, and this bluebird will render me more wealthy than the king of Aragon. Approach and see the wonders I will work with it."

He took the cage, and lifting it up to look at the bird was astonished to find that it was not blue at all, but a large gray bird, which turned to stare at him in an insolent manner, gave a fierce peck at the door of the cage with its beak, flung it open and flew out of the window, uttering a terrible screech.

The lord of the castle stood with open mouth, not knowing what to do or say. His guests broke out in peals of laughter at his discomfiture and the well deserved punishment for his unseemly avarice of exchanging his beautiful daughter for a worthless bird.

Meanwhile Bartolo was galloping on with his bride to the nearest town to be married, and when he arrived at the first hostelry he wished to dismount and engage the most splendid suit of apartments for his intended bride, but he found himself utterly penniless.

He had not calculated that in parting with the bird he had parted with his luck, and therefore as soon as he dismounted the horse disappeared, and his elegant dress became changed for the shabby one he had worn before he met the kind individual who had wished to befriend him. When the beautiful daughter of the lord of the castle beheld the transformation which had taken place, she ran back to her father as fast as she could, fright lending wings to her feet.

Serpents' Movements.

The serpent moves by elevating the scales on its abdomen and using them to push the body forward. The windings are always horizontal. The artists who represent the sinuosities as vertical have never observed the animal in motion. It is impossible for it to move in that way.

UNCONSCIOUS MONOLOGISTS.

They Are Victims of the Difficulty of Hearing Oneself Think In Gotham.

"I cannot say whether I shall make any detailed and professional use of my observations," said a neurologist, "but I do not mind telling you in a general way that New Yorkers are fast becoming a race of unconscious monologists—that is, of talkers to themselves without knowing it. Go down into the business quarter of the city and just watch the people there. I have not got my percentages together yet, but it is safe to say roundly that you will see nearly half the people exhibiting some of the forms of the disease, for of course it is a disease. They are either moving their lips, wagging their heads, puckering their eyebrows, making gestures with their hands or doing something, while in a great number of cases they are busy carrying on imaginary conversations between themselves and somebody else, laying down the laws with much emphasis, reading the riot act to some one or else meeting imaginary issues with circumstantial replies.

"You will see men doing the same thing in hotel lobbies, in the street cars and on the up town thoroughfares. Women are falling into the habit also, but not so much as men. The other day, while I was waiting for my coupe, I sat at the office window, and I declare that out of the 75 people who passed eight were showing some signs of monologania.

"Of course the primal cause of the disease is that we never allow our minds any period of repose. We are so eternally full of plans and schemes that anything like a quiescent mood is unknown, and that condition of morbid mental activity supervenes, which in turn is followed by a distinct weakening of the censory cells, of which condition self communication is always one of the symptoms.

"At the same time it must not be overlooked that undoubtedly much of the habit is due to the fact that this city is so thundering full of noise that one cannot hear oneself think, and so people have to think aloud."—New York Sun.

A Man of Prudence.

The cowboy was sitting in a chair tilted back against the shady side of the saloon taking it easy when one of his friends came by.

"Hello, Dick!" he said. "What's this story about the barkeep over the way callin you a liar yisterday and bullyraggin you around fer an hour er more?"

"That's what he done," admitted Dick boldly.

"What did you let him do it fer?"

"I had my reasons."

"'Fraid of him?"

Dick jumped up.

"Hold on there, pard," he said. "You ain't in the same fix that the barkeep was, and it ain't safe."

"Don't you worry about me. What about the barkeep?"

"Well, it was this way," explained Dick. "The barkeep was negotiatin fer a policy on his life fer $10,000 in favor of his widder. The business wasn't settled till this mornin. Now it's in workin order, an I'm goin over after awhile and give him a chance to bullyrag me some more. Then I'll go round and have a little talk with the widder. You must think I'm a chump that can't see past the end of my nose."—Detroit Free Press.

A Good Suit of Clothes.

A Barnesville lawyer appeared before his friends in a new and costly suit of clothes recently. When he named the price, a bystander exclaimed:

"Whew! I haven't had that much cash in a month of Sundays."

"Cash!" exclaimed the lawyer. "Why, I got it on credit, and I shan't lose any sleep if I never pay for it. I think turn about's fair play, and the other fellow can afford to do without it." And, lifting himself to his full height and buttoning his coat across his chest, he continued: "No, gentlemen, I never intend to wear a shabby suit. A man just can't afford to do it. Nobody has any respect for shabbiness. Why, I couldn't gain a case if I wore shabby clothes if I had the eloquence of a Demosthenes or Cicero, not if all the law and the prophets were on my side. A jury just wouldn't respect me enough to listen to me, and the judge himself would give his decision according to my outward appearance. No, sir, a man can't afford to wear shabby clothes."—Atlanta Constitution.

Dog Is Not Bad Eating.

There is actually nothing in the flesh of the dog that is distasteful or repulsive. Lewis and Clark, the explorers, who learned to eat it through compulsion, actually became fond of it in time. It is not generally known that it is still a favorite article of diet among certain people, but a French paper says that the number of dogs slaughtered at the abattoirs in Munich has increased amazingly in the past few months. The taste for dog flesh is said to have been imported by Italian laborers, who have recently come in large numbers to the Bavarian capital. The meat is used not only as an adulterant for sausages, but is eaten openly, under its own name, prepared in various ways.—Christian Advocate.

Soothing.

Madam—Yes, sir.

Doctor—And he needs something to quiet him. What is his business?

Madam—He is a waiter, sir.

Doctor—Well, slip a few pence into his hand every two hours during the night, and I'll call again in the morning. Good day.—London Tit-Bits.

SONOMA, JANUARY 12, 1895.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR

TRAMPS from Sacramento are flocking into Santa Rosa in large numbers and the city authorities are taking vigorous measures against them.

THE election frauds that have been unearthed in San Francisco in the recount of the ballots in the contest between Haley and Curry for County Clerk are astounding. It goes to prove that a large number of the election officers in that city were rascals and shows the necessity of adopting some other system of counting and tallying the votes than that now in vogue.

THE Petaluma Daily Argus, the first number of which was issued on New Year's day, reached our sanctum this week. It is published by those veteran newspaper men Messrs. Sam Cassidy and J. H. McNabb. Typographically and editorially the Argus is all that could be desired. We wish the new daily long life and prosperity.

THE Legislature convened at Sacramento last Monday. It is largely Republican. The impecunious members are looking longingly for the appearance of that Senatorial "sack," which is bound to make its appearance before a United States Senator is chosen. The race now appears to lie between Perkins and DeYoung, with chances about evenly divided between the two. A Republican caucus was held Thursday in which forty-six Senators and Assemblymen pledged themselves to support Perkins, among the number being Senator Holloway and Assemblymen Price and Staley of this county.

THE Contra Costa Democrat came out on New Years' day changed to the Contra Costa News, which is the original name of the paper. The change of name ought to have been made long ago brother Downer. The News is one of our most sprightly exchanges and we congratulate it on its victory in the recent election over Boss Bailey, a local politician of Martinez, who essayed to down the local paper that elected him County Clerk two years ago by stripping it of the patronage that rightfully belonged to it. The result was that Mr. Bailey was defeated for re-election and Mr. Downer will get, or ought to get, his share of the county printing.

THE McDonald anti-liquor and anti-tobacco tracts have been excluded from the Alameda public schools. In commenting on that fact, Editor Truesdale of the San Leandro Standard makes the following peppery remarks:

"The good people of Alameda objected to the statement made in these tracts that a man could not use tobacco and be a Christian. That would seem to depend entirely on what kind of a Christian the man might want to be. He could do a great many worse things than use tobacco and still be a very fair sample of 'Christian' such as is found in the churches to-day. He could lie, steal, covet and commit adultery and still hold his place in the house of God—if he were not too poor. Dr. McDonald himself could probably bear witness to the truth of this statement. But really this objection of the tobacco-using Christians is too comical. Do these people really want to be Christians? Christ taught that the body was the temple of God, and enjoined his followers not to defile it. Do they really want to be Christians? If so, can't they give us a bad little habit like using tobacco, for the sake of the Christ they pretend to follow? Bah! It's an easy thing to say 'I'm a Christian;' it's an easy thing to go to church and lift up the eyes in pharisaical holiness; it's an easy thing to draw one's skirts close when passing the lowly sinner and to say, 'I am holier than thou' to those who do not 'profess,' but it's not an easy thing to be a Christian in fact, and to follow the example of one of the noblest teachers that mankind has ever had. How many of these good people can look their consciences in the face in the stillness of the night and say, 'I'm a Christain?'"

An Old Soldier's Recommendation.

In the late war I was a soldier in the First Maryland Volunteers, Company G. During my term of service I contracted chronic diarrhœa. Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief it would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow. I take pleasure in recommending this preparation to all of my old comrades, who, while giving their services to their country, contracted this dreadful disease as I did, from eating unwholesome and uncooked food. Yours truly, A. E. BENDING, Halsey, Oregon. For sale by all dealers.

Town and valley have been overrun with tramps the past week, large numbers of whom are decently, if not respectably clad. They evidently belong to the army of opium fiends, thieves and worthless characters that were recently driven from Sacramento by the Vigilance Committee formed in that city for the protection of the lives and property of its citizens.

Special gospel meetings have been held in the Congregational Church the past week. The pastor of the Methodist Church and his congregation have been in attendance. There will be services as usual next Sunday morning and in the evening both congregations will meet in the Congregational Church. There will, in all probability, be meetings every night during the coming week. The pastors are especially anxious to have all the members of both churches make it a point to be present. They also kindly invite all others to come and hear the story of redeeming love.

Antonio Rigani, an Italian blockmaker employed in Schocken's basalt block quarries, met with an accident one day last week that cost him three toes of his left foot. He was engaged in getting out rock in the quarries north of town when a large bowlder weighing nearly a ton fell on his left foot, crushing his great toe into a shapeless mass. Two other toes were also mashed and all three were amputated by Dr. Davis in order to save the foot. The patient is now doing well and will be able to resume work in a few weeks.

Jas. Kelley and Dan O'Brien of the genus hobo were arrested at one o'clock Sunday morning by Officer Griffith and charged with malicious mischief. The men broke into the school house on Napa street early Saturday night and made a red hot fire in a stove in one of the school rooms, and when pounced upon by the officer they were enjoying themselves before a blaze in the stove that threatened to set fire to the building. Officer Griffith took his prisoners to Santa Rosa Sunday morning and lodged them in jail. On Thursday the prisoners were brought down from Santa Rosa and taken before Judge Cheney and plead guilty to malicious mischief. They were then sentenced to serve thirty days in the County Jail as guests of Jailor Weise.

DISASTROUS JOURNEY.

A Wagon and Its Contents Overturned into a Raging Torrent —A Narrow Escape.

On Tuesday morning last two young men in the employ of Thos. Rea, while on their way from Lakeville to El Verano, had a narrow escape from drowning near the Cooper ranch two miles southwest of town. The young men started from Lakeville early in the morning with a heavy farm wagon loaded with trunks, household goods, several coops of chickens and a two-seated carriage which was tied behind the wagon.

They had proceeded on their journey without mishap until reaching that part of the county road lying between the lands of Mrs. Rachel J. Snyder and the Cooper estate. Here they encountered the raging waters of Fowler Creek, which had changed its course and had flooded the road to a depth of several feet. While proceeding along that section of the road, which was completely obscured by water, they lost their bearings and ran off the grade into a deep and swift stream of water that was surging alongside the road. As the wagon and horses went over the young men jumped clear of the struggling animals just in time to save themselves, landing in shallow water in the middle of the road.

In their frantic efforts to free themselves from the overturned wagon the horses succeeded in breaking the pole and then swam to terra firma, none the worse for their adventure.

The six dozen chickens in the coops were all drowned with the exception of five, while a quantity of household effects were carried away by the swift running waters and lost. Only one trunk was recovered.

The vehicles were also badly damaged. The top of the carriage, which was a new one, was completely wrecked. The wagon was also more or less damaged.

A short time after the accident the young men made their way into town and reported the mishap. Granville Harris, Clark Gaines and Wm. Mumphrey then repaired to the scene of the accident and succeeded with difficulty in saving the wagon and carriage, together with the five chickens and trunk mentioned above.

The accident, which entails a heavy loss on Mr. Rea, is most unfortunate for him. He was just moving into the valley from Santa Cruz, having bought a chicken ranch at El Verano, whither the young men were bound when they met with the unfortunate accident.

The New Officials.

Sheriff Allen re-appointed G. F. Allen Under Sheriff, Messrs. Brophy and Murphy Deputies and Harry Weise Jailor.

District Attorney Seawell has appointed T. J. Butts as his assistant.

County Clerk Fulton installed as his assistants R. L. Thompson and F. G. Nagle of Santa Rosa and M. G. Hall of Healdsburg.

Assessor Vanderhoof has selected George Thurston of Santa Rosa as his office clerk. Eight field deputies will also be appointed by Mr. Vanderhoof between now and next March.

Recorder Atchinson, who is evidently a ladies' man, has selected as his deputies J. E. Gannon and Miss Minnie Cozzard of Santa Rosa and Miss Nellie Eldridge of Petaluma.

School Superintendent Davis will need no assistance and will run the office himself. We congratulate the people on the change in this office. The school marms will now no doubt smile as sweetly on him as was their wont to smile on Mrs. Martin before the lady Superintendent was defeated by that "horrid man."

School Notes.

The Sonoma Valley Union High School will re-open on Monday, January 28th, with Ben. Weed as Principal and R. M. Sims Vice-Principal.

The San Luis School will re-open Monday, February 4th with Miss Marguerite Burke as principal.

The Sonoma Public School Trustees have selected the following teachers for the next term: Miss Mandilla Gingery, Miss Susie Shaw and Miss Minnie Cook. The school will re-open the first Monday in February.

Another Sonoma Enterprise.

Sonoma's well-known wine-grower, Mr. Carl Dresel, has added an extensive bottling plant to his vineyards and winery. Mr. Dresel's red and white wines have earned a well-deserved reputation for age, purity and bouquet and he has built up a large trade in many Eastern cities. The wines in his cellar vary in age from one to twenty-five years, many of the brands being a nectar fit for the gods.

An Uncalled For Arrest.

Ex-City Trustee H. C. Manuel, and one of Sonoma's most respected citizens, was arrested by Constable Griffith, last Saturday, upon a telegram sent by the Sheriff of Riverside county. No charge had been preferred against him and the arrest was made by Constable Griffith without a warrant. Upon these facts becoming known to Mr. Manuel's attorney, Robt. Poppe, Esq., he promptly applied for a writ of habeas corpus and at the hearing before Judge Dougherty on Monday afternoon Mr. Manuel was discharged. He then returned to Sonoma and was immediately re-arrested by Deputy Sheriff Scott of Riverside county, who had arrived in the meantime with a warrant charging Mr. Manuel with defrauding a hotel keeper named Hickox, at Winchester in that county, out of a board bill. Mr. Manuel after his arrest went before Justice Cheney and was released on bail.

The arrest of Mr. Manuel on this charge was entirely uncalled for and when the case comes up for trial he will undoubtedly be acquitted. When he departed from Riverside to come to Sonoma a few weeks ago he left his business in charge of a person to whom the hotel keeper looked for his pay. Mr. Manuel left sufficient property to pay the bill three or four times over, and why the landlord should prefer to arrest him on a criminal charge instead of satisfying himself out of the property is one of those things no one can understand, unless the arrest was prompted by some evil-disposed person in Sonoma of whom there are a number in this town.

Neither Mr. Manuel or his friends have any fear of the outcome, and a suit for malicious prosecution will no doubt make some one's head swim. It will be a case of the biter bit.

THE STORM

The storm which raged all last week ceased on Sunday, but started in with renewed force on Monday morning and continued until Wednesday night without cessation. As we go to prees (Friday at 4 P. M.) indications point to a renewal of the storm.

Tuesday morning it reached its height and rain fell in torrents throughout the day. The waters of Sonoma Creek again broke over its banks and that part of the valley lying southeast of town, covering an area of several thousand acres, was under water for several hours. A lull in the storm and a change in the tide late in the evening, however, caused the waters to run off with great rapidity and little damage is reported.

A number of landslides are reported in the northern part of the valley. Between the Home for Feeble Minded and Chauvet's winery a landslide occurred which caused the county road at that point to sink and become impassable for a distance of 150 or 200 feet.

Between Glen Ellen and Chauvet's winery another large landslide occurred which carried away a large portion of the county road which slid into the turbulent waters of Sonoma Creek. The road is now impassable and it will take some time to build another higher up on the hillside.

So far the several bridges crossing Sonoma Creek have stood the high water without damage.

Miraculous Escape from Drowning.

During the late flood while working on the railroad near Healdsburg, Jas. Waters, foreman of the section hands, had a narrow escape from death about noon on Friday of last week. While working on the bank of a creek he felt the earth beneath him giving, but before he could reach a place of safety he was hurled into the seething waters. Near by was a culvert three feet square and seventy-five feet long. This was ten feet under the surface of the rushing waters and into this Mr. Waters was drawn when he fell into the stream and hurled through with terrific speed. As he passed out he threw up his hands, which movement caused him to rise to the surface. He then succeeded in swimming to terra firma, although his course was seriously impeded by a heavy pair of gum boots. His companions never for a moment doubted but that their worthy friend had sunk to his death and powerless to aid they waited in an agony of suspense and when Mr. Waters gallantly swam ashore cheer upon cheer was lustily given. — Santa Rosa Republican.

Families visiting Sonoma will find the Sonoma House a first-class hotel in every respect. *

THE "STORM PROPHET."

What Signal Service Officer Hall Has to Say About His Prophesies.

ED. INDEX-TRIBUNE:

Dear Sir—Everybody realizes that we are experiencing phenomenal weather, but not everybody knows the disturbing causes are owing to our earth being influenced by the great planet Jupiter, and we are approaching a storm period in the month of February that will long be remembered. Furthermore, it most likely will extend into the month of March.

How many have heard of the "Storm Prophet of St. Louis?" or know of an almanac for 1895 published by him that is illustrated with diagrams and gives a comprehensive forecast of each month in the year? It is interesting to note that his weather forecast for last month on the 9th and 27th was verified to the hour almost, although published a year ago. The unprecendented rainfall of January 3rd and 4th was anticipated by those who read his works. The storm diagram for January shows a great disturbance at the full of the moon at perigee on the 11th. Two distinct storm disturbances will show themselves during the mercury period. The first from the 19th to the 21st of January, but the most severe being about the 25th. The author of this work is Rev. Irl R. Hicks.

He believes that February will be interspersed with unsettled and threatening weather. Some hard storms will occur and a great cold wave will follow one storm that in the Northwest may prove a terror to man and beast. The diagrams show that storms of a dangerous character will sweep the continent from about the 22nd to the 24th of February. Look for enormous rains in some sections during this month. Of course the almanac for 1895 has the probabilities down to the day.

Every intelligent reader should be provided with Prof. Hicks' almanac, especially those who contemplate a journey by sea.

These brief hints possibly may interest many of your readers.

Meteorologically yours,
ROBT. HALL.

Sonoma, January 8th, 1894.

County Items.

It now transpires that the dead man reported as having been seen floating down Santa Rosa Creek, near that city, during the storm of last week, was a dummy man made out of an old suit of clothes stuffed with straw. The person that would perpetrate such a joke is a fool and ought to be booted out of the town.

At a meeting of Santa Rosa Royal Archs Masons on Friday night of last week Capt. When County Clerk Fulton took possession of the office in the Court House last Monday, to which he was elected by the people, he became custodian of a chest of gruesome articles, which, could they all tell the story of their experiences, would make the hair on the new Cierk's head stand up very straight. It is the chest that contains the revolvers, guns, knives, daggers, hatchets, clubs, etc., which have been exhibited in famous murder trials in Sonoma county. Many of the exhibits are blood stained and still bear evidence of a deadly tragedy. And it is not very pleasant to contemplate the fact that as the years roll along the collection is sure to grow.—Republican.

The Greatest Value.

You get the greatest value out of a silver quarter when purchasing a package of Simmons Liver Regulator powder. There is nothing like it for indigestion or constipation. Take it dry on the tongue, or make a tea. You'll afterwards take it in preference to pills.

Karl's Clover Root will purify your blood, clear your complexion, regulate your bowels and make your head clear as a bell. 25c., 50c. and $1.00.

IF in grocery stores, in cooking schools, or by peddlers in your kitchen, other baking powders are recommended or urged upon you in place of the Royal, reject them. It is unsafe to substitute any baking powder in place of the old standby, the thoroughly tried Royal. The official reports show that all others are cheaper made powders of inferior strength, and contain lime, alum or sulphuric acid.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, JAN. 12, 1895.

SAVED BY FASHION.

LIFE AND LIMB PROTECTED BY THE FADS OF STYLE.

Tall Collars, High Heels and Turned Up Trousers as Life Savers—A Man Held Back From a Watery Grave by His Chimney Pot Hat.

Our dress has often been ridjculed for its want of beauty. We are told there is nothing artistic and in many cases little pertaining to comfort in nineteenth century garments.

The habiliment of some of our continental neighbors is far superior, both in elegance and usefulness, to our own, so it is said, but we do not question this statement, as it is not our present duty to pick out the drawbacks of a dress that has satisfied us so long.

Ugly as is our customary mode, it has more than once been the means of saving the life of the wearer or been instrumental in preventing accidents which might have proved serious or fatal.

A gentleman wearing a collar of extreme height and rigidity while reposing idly on a heathery moorland fell into a doze, but roused himself to find something moving about his neck, and was just prevented putting his hand on the place by a companion, who at that moment glanced up from his paper.

The troublesome visitor was a large adder, which, coiling its slimy body round the gentleman's throat, would probably have bitten him severely but for the unusual height of the linen band that has been a favorite point of attack of the dress reformers for an inconceivable period.

By an adroit movement the friend caught the reptile behind the head, thus preventing injury to his hand. The collar, however, was impaired in the momentary struggle, and an ugly stain was pointed out as the deadly ejection of the poisonous fangs.

High heels—those peglike elevations which we are induced to believe have caused untold misery to the feet of women of fashion—have at least one good service to their credit—in saving the life of a fair mountaineer.

This foolish person essayed the climbing of precipitous cliffs in French kid boots, with heels of the peculiar bell shape once so fashionable, and on the present occasion it was well that she did not wander far from her companions.

Her activity, despite the unsuitability of her leathern elevations for mountaineering, was irrepressible, and venturing too near the edge of a jutting rock she slipped, and her frightened companions expected to see her dashed to atoms on the ledges below.

But, no! The high heel which had occasioned her fall became entangled in the thick brier branches and was sufficiently strong to support the venturesome woman for the few moments until her friends could obtain a firm grip of her limbs and restore her safely to the mountain path.

When examined, the shoe was found to be nearly dismembered—the heel hanging by a few rivets only. An ordinary mountain boot, with a flat, square heel, would have offered no angle of support for the briers, and under other than the present circumstances the climber would certainly have met with a terrible death.

An incident somewhat similar, but of not so dangerous a character, has been reported of a young fashionable, who had occasion to ride on the outside of an omnibus through a crowded thoroughfare.

Leaning over the rails, he overbalanced himself and would have been thrown in the midst of the traffic but for the reason that the bottoms of his trousers were turned up in that unreasonable style once more prevalent than at present with the exquisites of fashion.

The turned up hem was slung on the edge of the rail, while the scared youth dangled, with frantic arms sprawling, over the windows, with a face as red as a beet root.

A fellow passenger released him from above, and he was permitted to drop into the arms of the conductor. A fall from such an elevation would have meant a dislocated shoulder or a broken leg at least.

What romance or history can be connected with the ugly chimney pot hat? Yet quite lately one of these inartistic creations saved the life of a venturesome gentleman. Strolling beyond high water mark, he suddenly discovered himself caught by the tide, and being hemmed in by beetling, inaccessible rocks all means of escape seemed cut off.

The water rushed in, and the terrified gentleman was taken off his feet, with not a boat in sight to render him deliverance nor a person to hear his distressed cries. Unable to swim, he would soon have been drowned but for a little occurrence which proved his salvation.

During his struggle the silk hat he wore was washed off his head, and the man clutching at it as the only attainable object was surprised to find that it buoyed him up.

His arms were clasped, encircling the brim, while the top of the hat, partly submerged, resisted the water. By maintaining this position he was enabled to keep himself afloat for nearly 15 minutes, at the end of which time a boat rounded the cliffs. The boatman, observing him, quickly rescued him from an inevitable fate.—London Tit Bits.

His Lessons.

"I am trying to learn to ride a bicycle," remarked an elderly bachelor who walked somewhat stiffly, to a friend whom he encountered on the street. "I'm just going home from my lesson now. I've had more tumbles than usual this afternoon, and that's saying a good deal."

"How long are your lessons?" inquired the friend.

"Half an hour," responded the bicyclist with a rueful countenance—"25 minutes on the floor and five in the air is my usual proportion!"—Philadelphia Times.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts,

THE OLD POLICEMAN.

He Knew How to Use Electricity as a Means of Personal Comfort.

Policemen may be an illiterate lot, but they do every now and then contrive some method to get ahead of the ironclad rules which are popularly supposed by the long suffering taxpayer at least to govern their movements.

There is one particular bluecoat who, by virtue of his long service, carries three faded stripes on his coat sleeve, and he honestly believes that he is entitled to some incidental favors. Taken altogether, he is of such a naturally grumpy disposition that he is far from being popular among the police operators.

Notwithstanding all this, Mr. Brass Buttons beat the combination and beat it pretty thoroughly. He had been rather behind time in his hourly communications with headquarters, and his superiors determined to teach him a lesson. Accordingly he was sent to travel a lonely, isolated post, which had a solitary patrol box situated just alongside a deserted hut that had once been utilized as a toolhouse by a railroad corporation. It didn't require many hours' presence on the part of the disciplined copper for him to discover that he had been given the best of the deal in this particular transfer, and he immediately set about arranging a scheme whereby he could benefit by his newly acquired advantages.

The much craved boon that he sought was light naps. He had long ago tried the plan of an alarm clock set to go off a few minutes before pulling time, but tired nature had in each instance asserted itself, and his station had failed to hear from him. Now conditions were different, for he had found just what he needed to carry out the clever ruse he had concocted. Running alongside the deserted shanty were two electric light wires fully charged with a current of electricity, and to these the valiant watchdog pinned his faith.

First he once more produced his long ago discarded alarm clock after removing the gong from the top. Next he broke away the glass face, and after making sure that the clock was on time with his watch he made a connection with the electric light wires by means of two small pieces of copper wire. One of these he wound around the minute hand of the clock, and the other he firmly fastened to the framework of the timepiece just over the figures that indicated his hour for pulling up. Then to one of the wires he fastened two more pieces of copper, which he wound about either of his hands. This done, the wily policeman stretched himself out on the floor and enjoyed the desired nap, safe in the knowledge that at the proper moment the meeting of the two wires on the clock would convey to him a shock that was bound to waken him, so he could salute his station through the patrol box.—Chicago Times.

A Dramatist's Rejoinder.

When Colman, the English dramatist, was examined before the committee of the house of commons which sat on the theatrical question, he was asked whether he expunged all oaths or profane swearing from the plays submitted to his revision. He answered:

"Invariably."

"Did you ever count the number of oaths in your own comedies of the 'Heir at Law' and 'John Bull?'"

"Never, but I dare say there are a great many."

"Which you disapprove of?"

"Undoubtedly."

"Do you not think it would have been better to have omitted them?"

"Much better. They disfigure the scenes in which they are introduced and injure the humor."

"Then," concluded the chairman, thinking to clinch the argument, "you are sorry now that you wrote either of those comedies?"

"Quite the contrary," rejoined the licenser. "I rejoice exceedingly to have made a good pudding, although I regret that any bad plums should have crept into it."—New York Advertiser.

Pens and Ink.

The late Dr. Holmes, like Goethe, says Mr. Smalley in the New York Tribune, "dwelt on the importance of stationery and of a good pen and good ink to the writer, especially the imaginative writer. Between him and the due expression of his thought in black and white there ought to be as few obstacles as possible, no friction that can be avoided. Many a fine thought he declared had perished ere it was fairly born, strangled in the birth by a hair on the nib of the pen or choked out of life by muddy ink. His paper was ruled and glazed; his ink a thin black, not blue black, as is much of the best writing fluid in this country. He had written I know not how many books with the same pen. And he looked at the pen as if it were a part of himself."

Justice Holt and His Wife.

The English Chief Justice Holt and his wife hated each other, and when she fell dangerously ill he was so delighted that he became disgracefully tipsy. But his wife was equal to the emergency and sent for the great Dr. Radcliffe, who hated Holt, and therefore out of spite, when the case was presented to him, came with great promptness and saved her life.

His Geological Nose.

In the life of the late Dean Buckland it is related that one time "he and a friend, riding toward London on a very dark night, lost their way. Buckland therefore dismounted, and, taking up a handful of earth, smelled it. 'Uxbridge!' he exclaimed, his geological nose telling him the exact locality."

William Lilly, the noted astrologer, could foretell the fortunes of other people, but not his own. He married a woman whom he himself declared to be "of the temper of Mars." She left him, and she and her relatives instituted suit against him, costing him, as he relates with tears, almost £1,000.

If you want the very best of wine, liquors or cigars go to the Sonoma House, and you will be politely served by Mr. Chas. Stein *
